'DADT' reinstated for now

Appeals court sides with Obama administration, overrules previous ban

Reuters

SAN FRANCISCO A federal appeals court ruled Wednesday that the Pentagon may temporarily reinstate a ban on openly gay men and women in uniform while a lengthier stay in favor of the "don't ask, don't tell" policy is considered.

The ruling by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco added to the disarray surrounding a landmark legal battle that already has forced the U.S. military to welcome openly gay recruits for the first time.

Siding with the Obama administration, a three-judge appellate panel lifted an injunction issued last week by U.S. District Judge Virginia Phillips that barred further enforcement of a law requiring gay men and lesbians in the armed forces to keep their sexual orientation private.

She refused on Tuesday to lift her own injunction, prompting the administration to petition the appeals court.

Phillips' injunction now will be suspended while the 9th Circuit considers the administration's request for a longer-term stay to remain in effect during the government's overall appeal.

A 9th Circuit ruling on a full-blown stay pending appeal is expected after lawyers for the Log Cabin Republicans, the gay rights group challenging the ban, files its response to that motion in court in the next 10 days.

The group's lead attorney in the case, Dan Woods, called the one-page order from the appeals court a minor setback and said he expected to ultimately prevail in the case.

The emergency stay came as some gay veterans expelled under the "don't ask, don't tell" policy have sought to re-enlist in a test of the lower-court decision.

The Obama administration insists it supports ending the ban but prefers a political rather than court-imposed remedy, and has urged the courts to give the military more time to make the transition on its own.

Phillips ruled in September that the military's 17-year-old policy infringes on the constitutional free-speech and due-process rights of gay men and women in the armed forces.

She put that opinion into effect Oct. 12 with a blanket injunction requiring the military to stop enforcing the ban and halt pending investigations and discharges stemming from it.

Apple rolls out new superlight laptops

The new MacBook Air laptops start at $999 and weigh less than 3 pounds. GETTY IMAGES

CNN

Apple released a redesigned line of laptops and offered a peek at new Mac software at a news conference Wednesday at its Cupertino, Calif., headquarters.

The MacBook Air laptops will be available to buy in 11- and 13-inch-display models. The smaller size costs $999 and the larger costs $1,299.

Neither model includes a hard drive or DVD player.

Instead, the MacBook Air uses what's called flash storage, a more efficient but pricier technology used in many of the company's other portable products. That costliness is evident in the base model, which has only 64 gigabytes of space. (It costs an extra $200 to double the storage.)

This flash memory helps the new MacBook Air achieve between five and seven hours of battery life when surfing the Web, and 30 days of standby time. It also allows the computer to turn on almost instantly.

The machines are lighter, at 2.3 to 2.9 pounds, and thinner—the wedge-shaped aluminum gizmos measure just over three-quarters of an inch at the widest edge.

"We really see these as the next generation of MacBooks," Steve Jobs, the company's chief executive, said at the event. "We think all notebooks will be like these someday."

Rather than using DVDs, software will be installed through a new App Store, similar to the digital marketplace on Apple's iPhone and iPad.

This digital store can be downloaded to Macs running the newest version of OS X Snow Leopard in the next 90 days, Jobs said.

The bully wants to be my friend

Whenever I receive notice of a Facebook friend request, I get excited about whom it could be. A long-lost college classmate? An ex-boyfriend who's now fat and alone? Neil Patrick Harris inviting me to his baby shower?

So last week, when I saw who wanted to be my "friend," I was taken aback. It was my high school bully.

Like many awkward teens who struggle with their sexuality, I had a bully who taunted me relentlessly for four years. He was commonly referred to as "Cujo." I'm not sure whether this was a name he gave himself or one he earned, but it perfectly summed up his character.

Cujo would corner me in the stairwell between classes and threaten to beat the crap out of me. He'd knock the books out of my hands and kick them down the hallway while calling me "fag." He'd even glare at me across a classroom like a rabid dog waiting to attack.

He also called me names—most often "Edgar" because in our ninth-grade English class I wrote a report about poet Edgar Allen Poe. It wasn't the most creative taunt or worst name I could have been called, but it was upsetting nonetheless, especially when he would yell down the hall, "I'm gonna kill you, Edgar!" and then mutter gay slurs under his breath. I didn't even know I was homosexual at that time, but Cujo could sniff out the gay a mile away.

Bullying has received a lot of media attention lately after a number of gay teens, pushed to the brink, took their own lives. The rash of suicides prompted columnist Dan Savage to create the It Gets Better project as a way for the global community to lend support to LGBT youths and let them know there is a light at the end of that seemingly long, dark and endless tunnel.

My experience in high school wasn't as dire as some others have faced. I never was physically harmed, but the emotional scars remain.

When I saw this friend request, it instantly took me back to ninth grade, when Cujo pushed me up against a locker and told me never to show my face in school again unless I wanted to get the queer beat out of me. I stood there frozen, a skinny, geeky band nerd, while my best friend threatened to tell the principal if he touched me again.

Recalling those experiences, I wasn't sure if I should accept this friend request. Maybe Cujo wanted to apologize for the torment and harassment. Or maybe he wanted to pick up where he left off.

In the end, I decided to accept Cujo and find out where this leads. I am today a stronger and more confident person assured of who I am because, despite the stress at the time, it did get better.

KANYE'S FALL & RISE

Chicago-bred entertainer Kanye West has experienced some serious ups and downs during the past year. Approximately 36 percent of those surveyed held positive to very positive views of the rapper-producer-tastemaker back in August 2008, according to an E-Score Celebrity poll provided by e-Poll Market Research. To provide some context, the average musician's likability score is approximately 48 percent, according to e-Poll spokesman Randy Parker, while popular actors—including Sandra Bullock and Betty White—currently score in the 80th percentile.

But West's percentage—while not sky high—dipped sharply to 11 percent after Taylor Swiftgate at the 2009 MTV Video Music Awards, according to e-Poll spokesman Randy Parker.

Lately, things have been looking up for West, with a slight bump to 16 percent positive appeal as of the most recent data from e-Poll. All these blips in his likability levels led RedEye to launch our own non-scientific assessment of some of the actions that made West rise or fall from post-VMA days to the present. SOURCE: MTV, HOT 97, TRIBUNE, REDEYE

RUNAWAY KANYE

Despite wavering popularity, West out to prove that what hasn't killed his career has made him stronger

Plumes of crimson smoke crawl across the sky. Ballerinas in black tutus leap and twirl in a cavernous white dining hall. Model Selita Ebanks clad in little more than feather pasties.

Kanye West's latest video project, "Runaway," easily could serve as source material for a film studies class ... make that two film studies classes.

The 35-minute piece, which West presented at an invite-only screening late Tuesday at ShowPlace ICON Theatre in the South Loop, comes amid a groundswell of publicity for the polarizing artist, whose new album drops Nov. 22.

Despite his recent ubiquity—including his impromptu performance at the Facebook headquarters, his constant Twitter updates and releasing free music weekly via his "G.O.O.D. Friday" online experiment—the Chicago-bred rapper is still struggling to redefine his public persona.

There's Kanye West, the creative force behind "Runaway," a high art concept story of a phoenix that falls to Earth and is romanced by West. And there's the Kanye West who's still living down his infamous MTV Video Music Awards flap last year with Taylor Swift.

There is some evidence that West's public appeal has not fully rebounded since VMA-gate. A recent analysis by e-Poll Market Research showed the percentage of people surveyed who currently have a positive view of West sits at 16 percent—down from a high of 58 percent in 2004.

kyles files

KYRA KYLES
kkyles
@tribune.com

Still, there's no denying West's appeal as an artist.

Buzz abounded at Tuesday night's screening, where a select group of West's friends, fans and media outlets—including RedEye—got a sneak peek at "Runaway."

Wearing a black jacket with jeweled sleeves and his signature shades, West provided an intro to the "video," which features nine tracks from his upcoming "My Beautiful Dark Twisted Fantasy" album. The film debuts nationwide at 7 p.m. Saturday on MTV and BET. No doubt the film's odd images—including what looks like red-hooded Ku Klux Klansmen escorting an oversized Michael Jackson head—will set tongues a-wagging.

"Thanks for sitting through this," West told the packed room after the film. "When everyone was talking through the silent parts, it made me feel at home," he joked.

His remarks during an approximately hourlong examination of his musical past, present and future came across as one part wounded, three parts defiant. West said the post-VMA media scrutiny broke him down. He also came to some realizations.

One: "You can't do things to impress or get acceptance from other people." Two: "Blogs are where people who could never be you try to tell you how to do you."

After a brief hiatus from making music, he now is on a mission to make and champion good art and "working from the perspective of a 5-year-old ... before people told me what to think."

"I realized my importance only after my position was savagely taken away from me," West said of his career and role as pop culture patron of the arts.

Music industry analysts and fans who talked to RedEye agree the producer-turned-rapper-turned-tastemaker never really lost his position in the public eye. They bet fans will follow

West as he explores increasingly progressive sounds, projects and collaborations, such as his recent teaming with Justin Bieber and Wu-Tang's Raekwon.

All West has to do to stay out of pop purgatory is make music, according to longtime MTV personality Sway.

"Nobody took away his career," Sway said during a phone interview Wednesday. "What they took away was his reality."

Sway said West likely became accustomed to audiences accepting his previous outbursts, including a 2005 assertion that then-President George W. Bush didn't care about black people, and a 2006 onstage tirade when he failed to win the "Best Video" at the MTV European Music Awards.

Chicago music fan Lonnie Edwards of Logan Square agrees.

"We are used to artists doing and saying ridiculous things," Edwards said, adding that the VMA outcry was overblown. "There are too many toes in this world for somebody to get away without stepping on any."

Sway said it's clear West has changed, and it will only be a matter of time before he bounces all the way back, even with inevitable future faux pas.

"Almost anyone will acknowledge he is one of the most talented, exciting entertainers and producers of our generation," Sway said of West. "You don't really want him to go away if you're a fan of music culture. We've got to let this bird fly and see where he flaps."

Candidates for governor spar on policy

Chicago Tribune

Democratic Gov. Quinn and Republican rival Bill Brady each warned that the other is unfit to lead a scandal-ridden Illinois on taxes, ethics and education Wednesday night during a televised debate.

Quinn blasted Brady's promises to cut the budget to deal with the state's $13 billion deficit, contending a potential cutback in state school aid could result in higher local property taxes. But Brady said Quinn has "violated the constitution" by not balancing the state budget and said the governor's push for higher income taxes for schools was the wrong way to deal with government spending run amok.

During an hour-long debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters and WLS-TV, Brady maintained Quinn has been "operating a government of secrecy" that prevents the Republican from giving a pre-election picture of the budget cuts he would enact. But Quinn repeatedly argued that Brady would cut state funding for education by more than $1 billion.

In a campaign featuring a wide ideological disparity between the two major candidates, Brady sought to downplay his positions opposing abortion, gun control and gay rights by saying his agenda is to restore Illinois' economy. Quinn accused Brady of purposely avoiding forums and debates in the African-American community. That prompted Brady, a 17-year state lawmaker from Bloomington, to say Quinn "turned his back on the minority communities" when it came to pushing to bring new Wal-Mart retail stores to Chicago.

In a state where the two previous governors—Democrat Rod Blagojevich and Republican George Ryan—were snared in federal corruption investigations, each candidate sought to link the other to the disgraced former chief executives. Quinn, a former two-time running mate of Blagojevich, said Brady lacked "fortitude" by supporting Ryan, imprisoned on corruption charges, for secretary of state and governor.

"We do not need a governor of Illinois, like the last two, who's ethically challenged," Quinn said.

"Ethically challenged, governor?" Brady responded to Quinn. "You're the same person four years ago who told us Rod Blagojevich was an honest man and a man of integrity."

Home sweet museum

Kate McGroarty, winner of the "Month at the Museum" contest, enters to a waiting crowd Wednesday as she enjoys her first day at the Museum of the Science and Industry. "I love my apartment. It's so cozy," McGroarty said. "It's beautiful. I'm definitely not worried about being comfortable." ## Wrigley bomb suspect pleads not guilty

Chicago Tribune

A Chicago man charged with planting what he was led to believe was a time bomb outside a crowded bar near Wrigley Field is not a terrorist, "just an incompetent who spoke too much," his lawyer said in federal court Wednesday.

Sami Samir Hassoun, 22, pleaded not guilty to charges of attempting to use a weapon of mass destruction and attempting to explode a bomb.

Hassoun was arrested early Sept. 19 after he allegedly dropped a backpack loaded with a phony bomb into a trash can outside a tavern on North Clark Street.

The backpack had been given to him by undercover FBI officials, with whom Hassoun had been discussing vague plans for attacks in the city for months.

Attorney Myron Auerbach characterized his client as a "big talker" and "troubled young man" with no connections to actual terrorist groups.

"He's just an incompetent who spoke too much and was led down the path by [an] ... informant," he said.

2 officers reinstated

Two of the seven Chicago police officers put on desk duty after the alleged beating of a handcuffed man have been reinstated, apparently in light of evidence indicating they weren't at the scene.

Man charged for fires

A man who police say set several fires early Tuesday in an alley in North Center was arrested at his home hours later, authorities said Wednesday. Richard A. Sikora, 19, faces felony arson charges and misdemeanor criminal damage to property charges.

Police shooter sentenced

Juan Romero, 20, was sentenced to 42 years in prison Wednesday after being convicted of shooting and wounding a Chicago police officer in 2008, officials said. TRIBUNE

Wade plays defense on stand

Miami Heat star calm but terse during child custody testimony

Chicago Tribune

Miami Heat guard Dwyane Wade was on the defensive Wednesday as he took the witness stand for a third day of testimony in the drawn-out battle for custody of his two young children.

Wade was questioned by his ex-wife's lawyer, Michael Haber, who tried to paint a picture of Wade as an absent father who hasn't been involved in his children's lives and who has lived apart from them for years.

"I don't remember," Wade said when asked if he recalled the name of his 8-year-old son's kindergarten teacher.

Asked if his youngest son had trouble recognizing him in the first year of his life, Wade said, "I can't speak for [him]."

Wade, speaking calmly but tersely, admitted his former wife, Siohvaughn Wade, took care of most of the children's day-to-day necessities, such as taking them to doctor appointments. Throughout the court battle over the two boys, ages 8 and 3, Wade's lawyers have accused his former wife of bizarre behavior and contended she interfered with Wade's visitation time.

But Wade acknowledged Wednesday that his former wife had sometimes scheduled visits with the children to accommodate his busy schedule.

Wade, a native of suburban Robbins, finalized his divorce from his high school sweetheart in June.

Lester Barclay, the children's court-appointed representative, is advocating that Wade be given sole custody.

Speaking to the Tribune at a break, Wade said he's used to being on the witness stand and being bombarded with questions.

"I've been through it before," he said. "This is a three-year case."

Arcade Fire's Will Butler returns to NU roots

Chicago Tribune

Will Butler, one-seventh of the sprawling, massively popular Montreal indie band Arcade Fire, will deliver the keynote address at Northwestern University's Civically Engaged Young Alumni Week in November.

Butler, brother of singer Win Butler, graduated from NU in 2005 with a poetry degree. His talk Nov. 2 is expected to be personal—on a music career as a form of social activism.

It's also a coup for the fledgling 2-year-old Center for Civic Engagement, created to promote a hands-on form of social responsibility among students.

The center is promoting the school's One Book, One Northwestern reading program. This year's book is "Mountains Beyond Mountains," the Tracy Kidder best-seller about public health reformer Paul Farmer, who famously has worked with the poor in Haiti. Regine Chasagne, who co-founded the band (and is married to Win), has Haitian roots.

Humboldt Park hardest hit by homicides

By Tracy Swartz

REDEYE

Humboldt Park recorded 21 homicides from Jan. 1 through Oct. 15, the most of any community area, a RedEye analysis of preliminary police data found.

But there's good news for this West Side community area: There hasn't been a homicide there since August. It narrowly edged out Auburn Gresham and West Englewood, which have seen 20 homicides each from Jan. 1 through Oct. 15, RedEye determined. With 19 homicides each during the same period, Austin and Roseland are not far behind. All but one of the Humboldt Park homicides were shooting deaths, RedEye determined. A 46-year-old man was beaten to death in June, officials said.

The victims, all men, ranged in age from 15-46, RedEye found. Chicago recorded 366 homicides this year through Oct. 15, about the same number that was recorded last year during the same period, according to data.

Bravest woman in Mexico?

Marisol Valles Garcia

Student is only person willing to be police chief in violent city

7 PRAXEDIS G. GUERRERO, Mexico Some headlines are hailing her as the bravest woman in Mexico. Marisol Valles Garcia, all of 20 years old, says she's just tired of everyone being afraid.

Valles Garcia, a criminology student, became the police chief this week of Praxedis G. Guerrero, one of the most violent municipalities in the border state of Chihuahua. She was the only person who accepted the top job in a police force whose officers have been abducted and even killed.

"Yes, there is fear," Valles Garcia said Wednesday in an interview with CNN en Espanol.

"It's like all human beings. There will always be fear, but what we want to achieve in our municipality is tranquility and security."

There's good reason for the fear. Just this past weekend, a 59-year-old local mayor, Rito Grado Serrano, and his 37-year-old son, Rogoberto Grado Villa, were killed in a house in which they were hiding in nearby Ciudad Juarez. Another area mayor was killed in June.

Juarez is the bloodiest city in Mexico, with a reported 2,500 people killed in drug violence this year. Praxedis G. Guerrero is located about 35 miles southeast of Ciudad Juarez. Both are in the state of Chihuahua, which borders Texas.

Nationwide, the federal government says, more than 28,000 people have lost their lives since Mexican President Felipe Calderon declared war on the drug cartels after taking office in December 2006.

EA buys 'Angry Birds' publisher

8 NEW YORK Electronic Arts said Wednesday that it will acquire Chillingo, the company that publishes the ultra-popular smart phone game "Angry Birds."

Terms of the deal were not disclosed, but Reuters reported it was worth $20 million.

"By acquiring Chillingo, EA Mobile is increasing its market leadership on the Apple platform as well as reaffirming its position as the world's leading wireless entertainment publisher," EA spokeswoman Holly Rockwood said in an e-mailed statement.

"Angry Birds" has been one of the most popular iPhone applications since its November 2009 debut. The game was released last week for Android phones, and quickly topped 2 million downloads in just two days, according to RovioMobile, the game's developer.

WE'LL PASS, THANKS

Over the years, Bears quarterbacks have perfected the art of the terrible game

RedEye

When Rex Grossman walks into Soldier Field on Sunday wearing a Washington Redskins jersey, it'll no doubt bring back memories good and bad of his stint as a Chicago Bear.

There was, of course, the time the quarterback helped lead the team to the Super Bowl in 2007. There were the four-touchdown-pass games. And then, of course, there were the four-interception games. Among Bears nation, it became known as "good Rex, bad Rex."

But no matter how good he was at times, he never lived up to the hype as the team's franchise quarterback. In that, he's not alone.

Bears quarterbacks have had some nightmarish performances in recent years. So many, that they all seem to blend together.

Don't believe it? Take a look at the following terrible stat lines, and see if you can match them to the quarterback responsible.

PERFORMANCE

- 1 6-of-19 for 34 yards with no touchdowns and three interceptions for a quarterback rating of 1.3 in a 23-13 win vs. Minnesota.
- 2 17-of-39 for 149 yards with no touchdowns and five interceptions for a quarterback rating of 14.7 in a 24-7 loss vs. Cincinnati.
- 3 10-of-21 for 86 yards with no touchdowns and two interceptions for a quarterback rating of 19.2 in a 21-7 loss at Dallas.
- 4 10-of-27 for 94 yards with no touchdowns and three interceptions for a quarterback rating of 7.9 in a 31-7 loss at Baltimore.

NOW, MATCH WITH THE QB

a Rex Grossman

b Jay Cutler

c Kyle Orton

Rex: I still love Chicago

Rex Grossman's time in Chicago could be summed up in the phrase often used to describe his play: "good Rex, bad Rex."

Grossman, who played six years for the Bears after being selected with the 22nd pick of the 2003 draft, said he will remember the good times. He mentioned the team chemistry during the 2006 season, beating the Seahawks in overtime and celebrating the NFC championship victory over the Saints with the snow coming down.

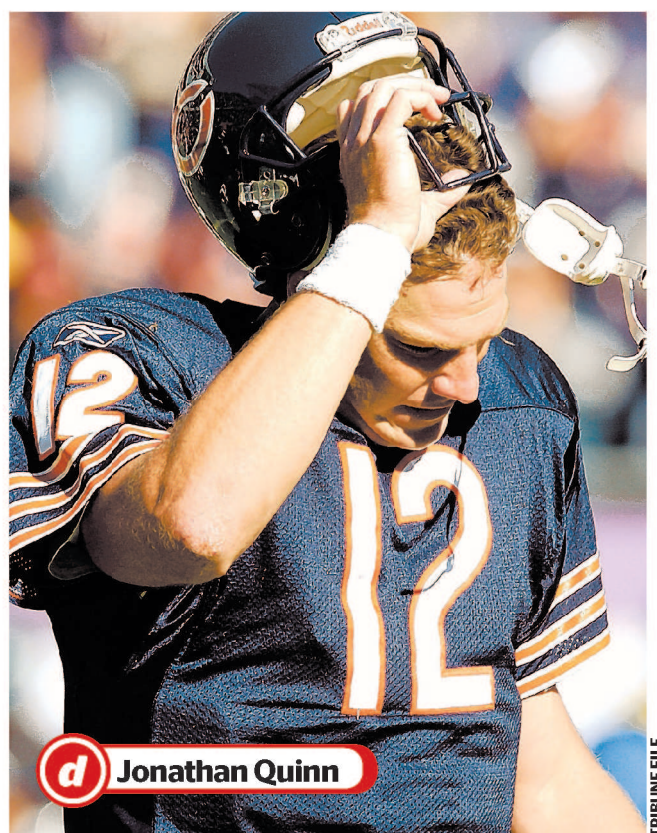

"All of those types of memories will stick with me for the rest of my life," he said. "All the negative, bad comments are just a blur."

He wouldn't be surprised if Bears fans remember less glorious moments. And he said he anticipates being booed.

"I've seen former players come in there and they've usually gotten booed," he said. "Either way, I don't care, I still love Chicago. I love the city, the tradition, the team and everything about it. I'm very proud to be a part of it."

As a former Chicagoan, Redskins starting quarterback Donovan McNabb understands the love-hate feelings Bears fans have for Grossman.

"I was a fan of his, I told him," McNabb said. "But then I hated Rex. As a Bears fan, first it was, 'Good old Sexy Rexy, he's about to lead us to the Super Bowl.' Then when he got to the Super Bowl, I was like, 'Oh, Rex!'" TRIBUNE

Concussions hurt fantasy teams too

With apologies to John Madden, when you're dealing with a game in which enraged 300-pound men slam into one another, you have to expect injuries to occur. Nonetheless, injuries are playing an even role in fantasy football this season. Why? The NFL finally realized that head injuries probably are bad for long-term health and is forcing players to miss time after concussions. Here are some of the players whose status has changed because of their boo-boos.

DeSean Jackson, Philadelphia wide receiver: After taking that bone-crunching hit against the Falcons, Jackson is sitting at least one game. So upgrade WR Jeremy Maclin and consider starting tight end Brent Celek.

Philip Rivers, San Diego quarterback: Rivers isn't banged up, but half of his receiving squad is hurting. Don't expect huge numbers from him.

Chris Cooley, Washington tight end: Cooley likely will miss this week with a concussion, and his backup Fred Davis has only six catches and is more of a blocking tight end. Look elsewhere.

David Garrard, Jacksonville quarterback: Garrard was another victim of this weekend's concussion hit parade, and his backup, recently discarded Bills QB Trent Edwards, was ineffective Monday night. Stay away from all Jacksonville players not named Maurice Jones-Drew for now.

CRUSHES

Mike Williams, Seattle wide receiver: His utter destruction of the Bears secondary Sunday could signal a modest breakout for the rest of the season.

Ray Rice, Baltimore running back: I put Rice here because he might be a bit underrated because of his lack of scores thus far. I see huge numbers for Rice starting this week against Buffalo.

CRASHES

Chad Ochocinco, Cincinnati wide receiver: His tweet-to-catch ratio is absurdly high. Translation: Keep him on the bench.

Visanthe Shiancoe, Minnesota tight end: Newly acquired Randy Moss seems to be stealing some of Brett Favre's love for his tight end. D.R. SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

1 What else should the NFL fine players for?	Every profanity means one quarter in the swear jar. Note: The money goes toward a pizza party.	Wearing sunglasses at night, mustard-colored double-breasted suits, Ed Hardy apparel of any kind.	Hair-pulling. Ask Troy Polamalu.	Whining about calls and pleading with the refs. I'm sick of Tom Brady and his shenanigans.	For appearing on "The T.Ocho Show." Can they also fine whomever thought that show was a good idea?
2 What flashbacks did the Vancouver Canucks have at the United Center on Wednesday night?	To a forgotten time when teenage singers were popular and "Hawaii Five-O" was a hit. Oh, wait.	Most had visions of season-ending losses; Alexandre Burrows' were of Duncan Keith's luxurious mane.	All the flash they saw was the glare of the Hawks' championship rings.	When they had Rick Rypien to protect them from all the die-hard fans at the Madhouse.	Visions of Luongo's tears danced in their heads.
3 What is Mike Quade's first order of business as Cubs manager?	Change his name to Ryne Sandberg so people will get off his back.	Free tickets for all Prospect High alums.	KWAH-dee ... rhymes with "body."	Purchase 25 copies of Tom Emanski's videos and give them to the team for Christmas.	To retire while he's ahead.
4 What does Ryne Sandberg think of the Cubs now?	Deep down, he loves them. He just doesn't like them anymore.	What most outsiders think: Thank God I'm not in charge of that mess.	I heard he's investing in goats.	Ryno, experienced in "waiting for next year," should have no problems. Back to Des Moines until 2012.	He's wondering how Jim Hendry still has a job and he doesn't.
5 Why is a Canadian AHL hockey team nicknamed the Heat?	Same reason the Jazz are located in Utah: Accuracy is out of style.	Listen hoser, it gets hot under all those pads.	That's coach Playfair's team, formerly called the Flames. Honest! Not a joke.	More importantly, why do the Abbotsford Heat use a bird for their mascot? Lay off the Molson, eh?	Not sure. But I saw a special called "The Decision, Eh?" where a player had to pick between Molson and LaBatt.

Carmelo-Bulls link still alive

ESPN reports Anthony trade to Chicago still possible

Carmelo Anthony keeps on preparing for the upcoming season unaware of, and ostensibly unfazed by, where that will be.

Amid the latest report that he could be headed to the Big Apple—this time, to the Knicks, not the Nets—Anthony said after practice Wednesday that he isn't affected by the renewed trade talk swirling around him.

"I'm still able to wake up in the morning, smile, come here, laugh and joke with my teammates, play basketball and compete," the Denver Nuggets' star said. "That stuff doesn't bother me."

ESPN reported the N.Y. Knicks got back into the bidding after Anthony let the Nuggets know he wasn't going to change his mind and sign a three-year, $65 million extension. ESPN also reported that the Bulls still were in the mix to land Anthony in a trade.

Three weeks ago, a proposed four-team deal that would have sent Anthony to New Jersey fell apart when the Nuggets decided to seek a sweeter package of players and picks for their star forward.

"I'm too focused in on this season right now to let rumors or anything like that come in and take over," Anthony said. "I'm focusing on playing basketball and doing what's right for the team."

And that's the Nuggets—for now.

Citing an unidentified source, ESPN reported the Knicks' proposal centers around packages including Anthony Randolph, the expiring contract of Eddy Curry and a first-round draft pick they would acquire from a third team.

The source also said the contract extension the Bulls reached this month with Joakim Noah would preclude him from being included in any deal for Anthony.

THE BIG ELEVEN

RedEye rounded up fans/alums/students of every Big Ten school to give us their biased look at college football every Thursday during the season. Join their antics on Twitter using the hash tag #red10.

How has Michigan State managed to stay unbeaten so far?

How important is this week's game to your team?

 Dana Mortensen  Illinois @danamarie26	Their creepy, steroid mascot is scaring the other teams. Or they're just sleeping with the refs.	Very! If we win, Illinois will beat its 3-9 record from last year. And we can't lose to Indiana!
 Jim Hoff  Indiana @jfhoff	By watching coach Lovie Smith—and then doing the exact opposite of what he's doing.	Beating Illinois will make us one win away from bowl qualification. Let the Eric Gordon bitterness continue.
 Tony Gatz  Iowa @tonygatz	That damned fake field goal against the Irish! They have been lights out ever since.	Huge. Iowa holds a 42-41-2 advantage all time against the Badgers. There will be blood.
 Victor H. Soto  Michigan @vicsoto	By scoring more points than the other team, but who cares? They'll just blow it in the bowl game.	Very important. It's a sure win! Go blue!
 Julie Adamski  Michigan State @JulieThereseA	Spartans! What is your profession?	As about important that every other team loses.
 Bekki Chapman  Minnesota @bekkijc	Their offense has managed to, each game, score more points than their opponent. Minnesota should try that.	This is Minnesota's first game with our new interim coach. Maybe there's hope for this season yet.
 Campbell Roth  Northwestern @soupgirl	My sources tell me it's their running game, but I think it's that they've mostly managed to stay out of jail.	See Question 1. Welcome to Ryan Field, boys!
 Jessica Six  Ohio State @funnybunnytoes	A conspiracy among the BCS.	After last week, no more losses. There might still be hope.
 Ian Patrick  Penn State @NittLion78	A simple formula: MSU points scored - (# of Dantonio heart attacks x 200) > 0.	If we lose to Minnesota, I join the convent and adopt the moniker "Sister Mary Paterno."
 Andrea Bailiff  Purdue @acbailiff	By making a "Wall of Chest" using Sparty and Gerard Butler. Wonder Twin powers, activate!	Purdue fans were hoping for a win over No. 1 Ohio State. We'll have to settle for a win over No. 10 Ohio State.
 Blair Vender  Wisconsin @Blender86	That's like asking how many licks it take to get to the center of a Tootsie pop. The world may never know.	Week 6: Won Bunyan's Axe (again). Week 7: Whooped No. 1 team. Week 8: Heartland Trophy is ours!

NEWS ALERT

Chinese tapas spot Lao You Ju (2002 S. Wentworth Ave.) opens Friday.

Judgment day

Which of these 5 Halloween-minded cocktails are scary good or just plain scary?

By Metromix staff

Halloween cocktails seem to be emerging around town faster than bump-laden Snooki hair can fly off costume-shop shelves. We navigated the scene to test five such drinks and give them the final word on look, taste and intoxication level. Pick your poison and get into the spirit.

TAKE IT SPOOKY AND WELL-BALANCED

WEDNESDAY/FRIDAY ($12)

Custom House Tavern

500 S. Dearborn St. 312-523-0200

One of nine on a themed cocktail list honoring The Addams Family, this foggy blend of Ransom gin and Buna No Tsuyu sake shaken with muddled red grapes is crisp, well-balanced and just slightly sweet. The garnish of two skewered red grapes subtly reminds us of that popular bowl-of-eyeballs party trick from our elementary school days. —LISA ARNETT

TAKE IT PUMPKIN-TASTIC

PUMPKIN BOMB ($3)

Grace Street Tap

3759 N. Western Ave. 773-463-7120

Between now and the end of December, settle onto a stool at this North Center bar to sample its house-infused pumpkin vodka. The lo-fi concoction sits on the counter in a 3-gallon glass jar loaded with thick pumpkin rinds marinating in Sobieski vodka and cinnamon. Currently, sadly, they're mixing it with Red Bull to make pumpkin bombs ($3), but we suggest sweet-talking them into serving the deliciously earthy booze by itself. —GEOFF GEORGE

LEAVE IT FRIGHTENINGLY STRONG

MONSTER MASH ($4.50)

Trader Todd's

3216 N. Sheffield Ave. 773-348-3250

Composed of generous amounts of vodka, Jager, amaretto and Bacardi Coco (plus a splash of fresh-squeezed OJ), the Monster Mash takes you back to early college, when drinks were fruity and deceptively strong. The Jager alone overpowers as you find your bearings in the bar's tropical theme between Ke$ha songs on the jukebox. Bottom line: Don't make this your first drink of a longer crawl or you'll be calling it an early night. —G.G.

TAKE IT WHISKEY FOR THE HALLO-MASES

CROOKED NECK ($11)

In Fine Spirits Lounge

5420 N. Clark St. 773-334-9463
Fall-centric bliss! This subtle, milky brew of pumpkin-infused Death's Door white whiskey, dry vermouth, egg white and bitters conjures cool nights and bonfires without being themey. Pumpkin is present but not overwhelming thanks to the whiskey infusion, creating just enough kick to keep you toasty. In other fall menu news at the Andersonville lounge, we can't help but lust after the new Stone Roses ($12), a gin drink named for the "I Wanna Be Adored" Manchester outfit. —LISA BALDE

» The club slated to open as Opera Ultra Lounge at 858 W. Lake St. has changed its name to 8 Fifty 8 but still plans to open Friday (see "On Tap" for details).

» Anniversary alert! Rock Bottom (1 W. Grand Ave.) rings in its 12th Thursday, while Bar Novo (1 W. Wacker Drive) celebrates one year next week.

LEAVE IT NOT STRONG ENOUGH

CASPER THE FRIENDLY GHOST ($8)

Harry Caray's Tavern

700 E. Grand Ave. 312-527-9700

Fittingly garnished with a marshmallow ghost, Casper the Friendly Ghost looks like a glass of milk in a martini glass and tastes nearly as plain. The blend of whipped-cream vodka and cream masks any taste of alcohol, though the coconut rum adds a subtle hint of suntan lotion. For those who like their drinks a tad stronger, try the beautiful Black Widow ($8), made with melon liqueur, vodka and grenadine, then drizzled with a spiderweb design of chocolate syrup and garnished with a gummy spider. —LINDA HAYS

NIGHTCRAWLERS

SEEN ON THE SCENE AT ... B Bar, 1909 N. Lincoln Ave. (Lower Level)

We stopped in Lincoln Park's subterranean B Bar (the "B" standing for "basement") to chat with the small crowd of chummy locals who happened to share the same fondness for a certain cheap beer. BY CRAIG SEYMOUR

Ashley Lopez
26, computer graphics

What brings you out tonight?
Just came out with friends. We wanted to check out the scene here.

What are you drinking?
Coors Light, my favorite. I went to the Coors brewery in Colorado, and ever since then it's been my favorite.

You're married; what's your best advice for single people looking for the right person?
Find somebody that can make you laugh.

Ryan Turner
26, marketing and sales

How would you describe the vibe of the bar?
It's a great vibe here. Only the people that should know about it know about it.

What are you drinking and why?
I'm drinking a Coors Light, because I was drinking a lot of vodka earlier.

What's your favorite drink?
Jeremiah Weed. It's a sweet tea-infused vodka. You pour a glass of Jeremiah Weed and throw a couple ice cubes in there with a splash of water. It is phenomenal.

Tracy Sieben
24, sales consultant

How would you describe B Bar to someone who's never been here?
It's smaller, and it has a local neighborhood feeling.

What are you drinking?
Coors Light.

Fall is notoriously a time for people to couple up. What's your best dating advice?
Be yourself and try to have a good time.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

It seems like Bruno Mars (right) is everywhere right now! Love him or hate him? Why?

Send your answers to @mmxmusic; they could appear Friday in RedEye!

Sparrow & whiskey

Chicago rockers King Sparrow answered our Chi-Tunes questionnaire in the "about" section at chicagonow.com/chi-tunes. Do the same and your band could appear in RedEye and Metromix!

CHI-TUNES

King Sparrow is made up of Eric Ides Georgevich (vocals, guitar), Sean Price (bass) and John McGeown (drums).

Listen to King Sparrow's "Conveyor Belt" at chicagonow.com/chi-tunes.

What makes your live show great?

It's a razor-sharp, super-intense, no BS kind of show.

Describe your sound in five words or less.

Molten aluminum shrapnel shards.

Tell us something random about the band and why that's significant.

We all really like Scotch whiskey. We sing about it occasionally.

Whom would you want to work with, and with whom would you never work? Why?

Love working with: People who are passionate about what they do.

Would prefer not to work with: Shadeballs.

If the band were a cartoon character, whom would it be and why?

Optimus Prime [from "Transformers"], because he's righteously ruthless.

What's the best album you've heard recently?

The Foals' "Total Life Forever"

What song do you never want to hear again?

Nickleback and Nickleback-inspired songs.

What is Chicago's best music venue and why?

Schubas: great sound, warm, inviting, vintage. Also an awesome and super professional staff.

New releases

Scott Lucas & the Married Men

!!! "The Absolute Beginners EP"
 G&P Records

Scott Lucas, best known as half of the long-running Chicago rock duo Local H, understands that the idea of assembling a seven-piece group for a solo turn might sound a bit incongruous to some. "The irony of putting together a band this big to go 'solo' certainly isn't lost on me," he said in a statement announcing the album, the group's second. "But I think the idea should be to try different things."

Opening with a gorgeous cover of David Bowie's "Absolute Beginners," the mini-album's four cuts (also included are a reworked version of Local H's "Hey Rita" and new versions of two songs from the Married Men's debut, "George Lassos the Moon") find Lucas focusing exclusively on matters of the heart. The frontman croons his way through a downcast "Last One" like a death row inmate awaiting that final, fateful walk, singing, "It always ends the same ... pistol-whipped and bleeding in the sheets." But even though love always seems to render Lucas fractured and left-for-dead, he can't help crawling back into that ring on "Crosshairs," an autumnal ballad that finds the singer gently prodding a lover to stay and grow old with him.

In concert: 10 p.m. Oct. 26 at Empty Bottle

Swift connection

A crossover star at 20, Swift pens songs Taylor-made for her fans

Chicago Tribune

"The whole process of songwriting starts out in a very lonely place for me," Taylor Swift says.

Forget for a moment that she's a four-time Grammy Award winner who has moved 13 million albums, 25 million song downloads and is the best-selling digital artist in history. When Swift comes on the phone for an interview, she talks the way songwriters talk: an intuitive who favors feeling above all else.

"I sit down to write a song because I'm feeling a very intense emotion, usually an intense form of pain," Swift says. "And I sit there and I'm writing it, and I'm thinking that I'm the only person who has felt this kind of sadness. ...

Then, she says, "something magical happens."

"I put that song on an album and it goes out into the world. Then I get to stand on a stage and sing that song to people who are singing the words back. At that point, I don't feel like I'm alone anymore."

Swift releases her third studio album, "Speak Now," on Monday. The girl who began her recording career as a teen country-pop phenomenon is now a full-blown crossover star at 20. Some things have not changed: The kid who first penned such freshman and sophomore heartbreak hits as "Tim McGraw" and "Fifteen" now is moving into young adulthood, but she still specializes in first-person narratives about love.

"Writing about love and relationships is just so much more fascinating to me than writing about jet lag or living on a tour bus or hotels," she says. "I don't write about my career or my schedule. I write about what I feel."

And what Swift feels seems to be shared by a significant chunk of the world.

"Her audience is big, it is diverse, and I really think they will stay with her through this," says Wade Jessen, Nashville's senior chart manager for Billboard. "I think the younger members of her audience are making that journey with her."

Of the four songs made publicly available leading up to the record's official release, "Innocent" signals her greatest maturation as an artist. It's her musical response to Kanye West, who created a media stink last year when he interrupted Swift's acceptance speech at the MTV Video Music Awards. Performing the song for the first time at this year's VMAs, Swift took the high road. Her lyrics teemed with forgiveness and empathy, and the notion that renewal is possible even after a public fall from grace: "Who you are is not what you did."

The singles "Mine" and "Back to December" are classic Swift song-craft, simple but honest expressions of emotion. The wistful pop ballad "Back to December" finds her regretting a breakup with a former boyfriend. The addictively hook-y "Mine" casts Swift as a wounded loner—"a careless man's careful daughter"—who falls for a guy who truly gets her.

In these snapshots of love in all its glory and angst, Swift has not retreated from the confessional tone that first drew fans—especially female ones. And just like the girls and young women who confide in her at her meet-and-greets, she wants to be authentically heard.

"I think everyone has a desire to be understood," Swift says. "And especially girls like me and girls my age ... we want to feel that someone we're with knows us on a deeper level and wants to know us on a deeper level. I think that we also want to be heard by society and really have our thoughts be conveyed."

Her power to connect with her fans should not be underestimated. In the concert video of her 2008 hit "Fearless," the camera fixes on a fan holding a sign that reads: "I Play Guitar Because of U."

"There's no question that she's put herself in the place of being a role model for these young women," Jessen says. "I think she's made it more comfortable for young people to express what's going on with themselves, which is so key to their survival of those horribly awkward and sometimes dangerous years."

TAYLOR TIME 2010

September

MTV Video Music Awards: Taylor Swift performs new single "Innocent" without interference. The song's lyrics might be absolute of—or swipes at—Kanye West. West apologizes for his behavior.

August

Wins four awards at Teen Choice Awards.

July

Bluewater Productions releases "Fame: Taylor Swift" comic book.

May

Receives artist of the year award from National Association of Recording Merchandisers in Chicago.

March

Wins favorite female singer award at Kids Choice Awards.

February

» Performs awful duet with Stevie Nicks at Grammys, takes home four trophies.

» Has a small part with then-boyfriend Taylor Lautner in Garry Marshall's ensemble movie "Valentine's Day."

January

Album "Fearless" declared top seller of 2009

2009

December

Voted the Associated Press' Entertainer of the Year.

November

Wins five American Music Awards and four Country Music Association Awards. Hosts "Saturday Night Live."

September

Wins best female video at the MTV Video Music Awards. During her acceptance speech, West steals microphone away and asserts that Beyoncé should have won.

GTL Garfield Tank
$24.50 at delias.com

Yes, it's ridiculous. But isn't it ridiculously cute? Everyone loves Garfield and everyone (secretly) loves "Jersey Shore," so honestly it's shocking that more tees like this don't exist. Whether you love it or love to hate it, you've found your next tank to lounge around in.

BOOK
'Squirrel Seeks Chipmunk:
A Modest Bestiary'

David Sedaris

David Sedaris' new collection of short stories of mice, chipmunks, dogs, cats and chickens—all drawn by Ian Falconer, creator of the bestselling Olivia books for children—appear to be fables, but they're not exactly. Because, he says, fables have morals; what he's created is a "modest bestiary," where lessons might not be learned and a critter meeting a bloody end might not deserve such a cruel fate. These are some of Sedaris' best stories—those with twists that are improper or even nasty. This mix of not-nice with playful and predictable keeps the collection surprising. The animals have given Sedaris' humor some new teeth: tiny and sharp, and sometimes ready to draw blood. CAROLYN KELLOGG, LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEER
Big Eddy
Russian Imperial Stout

Due in stores Nov. 1

Leinenkugel's beers tend to be less than subtle with their flavors—though that's not always a bad thing. The brewer's imperial stout sticks to that pattern at first taste but breaks away from it by the time you get to the finish, which is just heavy enough to make it memorable. What is not subtle about this beer, as with many imperial stouts, is the alcohol content. At 9.5 percent, it's no mystery why it's sold in four-packs.

ALBUM
'Come Around Sundown'

Kings of Leon

Before they became the Grammy-winning torchbearers for American rock, Kings of Leon were wholly unpredictable, wildly uneven and all sorts of fun. Then came the anthemic one-two punch of "Sex on Fire" and "Use Somebody." "Come Around Sundown" sounds like a misguided attempt to simply hang on to as many of those casual chatters of "This sex is on fire!" as possible. Only on the brilliant "Mary" does the band sound like it was interested in trying something new. Surely the guys have more daring left than that.

Can Chiropractic Help Me? HOW MUCH WILL IT COST?

We are often asked, "What's the best way of finding out whether or not a doctor of chiropractic can help my problem?"

We believe the answer can be found in a complete chiropractic consultation and examination, including x-rays. And to help find out for sure, we will do a complete consultation and examination, including x-rays, if necessary, (procedures that normally cost $390 or more) for only $25.

We will make this special program available through October 28, 2010. The only exception to the offer involves personal injury cases (workers' compensation and auto accidents) in which there is no charge directly to the patient.

$25.00 Reg. $390 Value

Must present ad at time of appointment.

YOUR INITIAL VISIT WILL INCLUDE:

- A Private consultation with the doctor.
- X-rays, if necessary.
- A thorough spinal examination including orthopedic & neurological test.
- A confidential report of our findings.
- An explanation of our treatment procedure if we determine chiropractic can help you.
- A REFERRAL TO THE PROPER SPECIALIST IF WE DETERMINE CHIROPRACTIC CAN'T HELP YOU.

THESE CONDITIONS ARE SOME OF THE DANGER SIGNALS:

- Headache
- Arthritic pain by stiff neck
- Loss of sleep
- Scoliosis (Curvature of the spine)
- Leg pain & numbness
- Arm pain & numbness
- Backache
- Fatigue
- Tension
- Whiplash injury

If you are experiencing any of these symptoms, call our office today for an appointment.

Life's a witch for Graham

Katerina Graham wasn't about to give me any scoop on Bonnie, the witch she plays on The CW's "The Vampire Diaries."

But she did offer this tidbit as we discussed Bonnie's desire to protect her friends from vampires, werewolves or anyone threatening them: "Even if there was a bad witch in town, one that was up to no good, she would challenge her. Definitely. She wouldn't let it slide just because they might bring another, well, you know, witch in."

A clue! The spoiler-blocking Graham might have slipped, because since our chat "TVD" executive producer Kevin Williamson told TV Guide that Bonnie will meet a witch named Lucy "whose identity will be a big surprise."

But that's probably not going to happen in "Plan B," the episode airing at 7 p.m. Thursday on WGN. The vampire-despising Bonnie does deal with her strained relationships to BFFs Elena (Nina Dobrev) and Caroline (Candice Accola). Despite their differences—Elena dates hottie vamp Stefan (Paul Wesley), and Caroline has become one—Bonnie still will help them, Graham said.

"I think Bonnie is all about protecting and loving her friends," the 21-year-old said. "She's going to do what she has to do to protect the ones she loves, no matter what."

She's got the game to do it, too. Graham said she believes Bonnie has been training for a rematch with the evil vampire Katherine (also played by Dobrev), who has come to the creature-plagued Mystic Falls to wreak havoc for Elena, Stefan and his brother, Damon (Ian Somerhalder). Katherine already got the best of her once, but Bonnie—Graham actually—wants another battle.

"I hope. I love when Nina's just like the badass, kick-ass woman," she said. "I love doing scenes with her, period, but I really love doing showdown scenes with her because she's just so into it. I think a showdown with Katherine would be incredible."

She also wants Bonnie to find love, which is a story line that exec producer Julie Plec has promised. Still, Graham wasn't giving anything away.

"The strongest connection she has with a guy is with Damon, and it's not a positive one," Graham said, refusing to speculate on Bonnie's love life. "Maybe we'll talk in a few weeks to recap."

DOES BONNIE FIND LOVE?

Many "TVD" fan sites speculate that Bonnie (Katerina Graham) and BFF Elena's brother, Jeremy (Steven R. McQueen), will become a couple. When I asked McQueen how close their characters get, he laughed and said, "She will be involved in [the vampire hunting] story lines, whether it's with me I have no idea."

Kardashian fashionably late

The invitation to the exclusive Michael Hill cocktail party featuring Kim Kardashian said the festivities would take place from 9-11 p.m. Tuesday at Water Tower Place. What time did the socialite-turned-E! reality TV star show up at the jewelry store?

About 11 p.m.

Guests at the swanky party didn't hold it against the "Keeping up with the Kardashians" star. They yelled "I love you" and "You're beautiful" while she spoke on a microphone about the Michael Hill contest she's promoting. Hill, who also was in attendance, is giving away a 22-carat diamond ring to "The Best Couple in the World."

Right before she was escorted out of the store (Kardashian's appearance lasted around 20 minutes), she briefly spoke to me about what it's like to turn 30, which she will do Thursday.

"It was a little nerve-racking at first," Kardashian said as photographers and anxious fans, many of whom were holding camera phones, surrounded her. "But it's really nothing. It's kind of the same."

When reminded that she told MTV there were certain things she felt she couldn't do once she turned 30, Kardashian responded "Did I say that? Oh, I was kind of joking." Kardashian insisted she is enjoying turning 30 much more than she enjoyed turning 21.

"[Thirty] is actually a lot better. I know who my solid friends are. They're a great group of people. At 21, you have no idea what you're doing," said Kardashian, who married at 19 before getting divorced in 2004. "I was like an old married hag at 21."

GOLD MAY BE BETTER THAN MONEY IN THE BANK

If you had $50,000 in the bank and you transferred it into Gold at today's price, you could now have an opportunity to possibly gain as much as 7 times its value. That's right, $350,000. On the other hand, if you leave that same $50,000 in the bank for 10 years, chances are, it's only going to be worth about $50,000. When you convert money to Gold, you haven't spent your money, but have transferred its value from a declining paper currency, to a precious metal that is rising in value. With predictions of Gold rising from more than $1,300 an ounce to $10,000 an ounce in the future, now could be a great time to get in. Buying Coins involves some risk. The market for these items is unregulated, so prices may rise or fall over time, therefore the value of a coin depends in part on the price you pay. You should not acquire any item if you are not competent or qualified to make your own financial decisions.

THE WRITE STUFF?

CRITICS SINK THEIR CLAWS INTO JAMES FRANCO'S DEBUT BOOK

The hype machine of James Franco's career has kicked into high gear, with everything from a magazine cover of the actor in drag to his stint as a Ph.D. student in English at Yale University. On top of all this, Franco's first book, "Palo Alto," a collection of short stories, was published Tuesday. We took a peek at the reviews to see if critics like his writing as much as his acting.

By Dana Moran
REDEYE

"I was reminded of the great Dorothy Parker line: This is not a book to be tossed aside lightly, but to be thrown with great force."

MARY MCNAMARA
Los Angeles Times

"James Franco's debut story collection, 'Palo Alto,' is a thin, hackneyed affair, not downright disastrous, but too amateurish and undercooked to carry any real force."

MICHAEL LINDGREN
The Washington Post

"Perhaps it's best to think of his debut collection, 'Palo Alto,' as part of some ongoing performance, where he now plays a lazy and insipid writer."

DON WATERS
San Francisco Chronicle

"Franco, 32, is no mere literary interloper, a celeb taking advantage of a publishing industry hungry for star power."

MARCO R. DELLA CAVA
USA Today

"Franco is actually quite a competent writer. 'Palo Alto' would have been much better with a touch here and there of kindness."

CRYSTAL CHOW
San Jose Mercury News

Yes, he will

President Obama is going straight to basic cable to get out the vote. The prez will appear on Comedy Central's "The Daily Show" on Wednesday, according to Reuters. It's his first visit to Jon Stewart since taking office. Earlier this week, Obama revealed he will appear Dec. 8 on a Discovery Channel "Mythbusters" episode that deals with Archimedes' mythological death ray. What's next, "Ice Road Truckers"?

Country idol

Gwyneth Paltrow is one busy singer/actress. Paltrow will make her live singing debut Nov. 10 at the CMA Awards, which airs on ABC, to promote her upcoming film, "Country Strong," according to usatoday.com. Adding to her musical gigs, eonline.com reports Paltrow also has started filming her guest spot on "Glee," though there is no official word on whether her character will sing.

Better than Playboy?

Looks like JWoww will be keeping her clothes on ... for now. The "Jersey Shore" star turned down Playboy's offer of $400,000, she told Ryan Seacrest on his radio show, according to huffingtonpost.com. JWoww was vague about why she declined. "There is a better opportunity out there, which everybody will probably see soon," she said. Guess we'll have to stay tuned.

MILLION

That's the value of the Bombshell Fantasy Bra by Victoria's Secret, which Adriana Lima modeled Wednesday in New York, according to msnbc.com. She also will wear it during the lingerie maker's fashion show Nov. 30 on CBS.

Live from 'Coco Cam'

Conan O'Brien's online, 24-hour office "Coco Cam" launched Wednesday with plenty of zaniness. The first day of Internet broadcasting included an aerobics session with women in 1980s-era workout gear and a dancing man in a taco costume, according to The Associated Press. "Conan" debuts Nov. 8 on TBS.

Rumor watch

Us Weekly magazine has whipped the rumor mill into a frenzy with a report that superstar singer Beyonce is pregnant. But before congratulations can be handed out, some skepticism is in order: Us Weekly's story is attributed to an unnamed source, and reps for Beyonce and husband Jay-Z did not comment on it Wednesday. And past reports, including two in the spring, that the "Halo" singer was sporting a baby bump have proven false.
